Dr. Asna Mubashra, born in small city of Toba Tek Singh in Pakistan; is an Artist, Instructor and an HEC Approved Art and Design Research Supervisor. She received the 101 Excellence Award 2021 in recognition of her services extended towards academia and community. She was awarded First Position for her Research Proposal Having Highest Social Impact as per inter-university jury at University of the Punjab. She focuses on equitable pedagogy. Asna has excelled in concept recognition and development. Throughout her outstanding academic career, she was among the high achievers. She was able to secure First Merit Position in MPhil level studies at University of the Punjab, College of Home Economics. She also secured First Merit Position in Undergraduate level at University of the Punjab, College of Home Economics. She received her PhD from the School of Design and Textile at University of Management and Technology. She investigated user centered design theory and explored the creation of adaptive clothing for special needs of Hemiplegia patients. Her inquiry encompassed detailed need assessment, co-designing and design formulation involving opinion of the hemiplegia patients and their caregivers since elementary stages of design process, this practice is contrary to the prevalent design practices where end user is only engaged after the manufacturing to test the designed output. Asna's work highlights a better, more fulfilling design output. This design approach is important for an inclusive community and provision of equal chances to all segments of society and especially to people with special needs. She is an advocate of human centered design theory to propose designs of the future which have better useability by the end users and have less environmental impact. Asna has 13 Published Research Articles to her credit, published in "W" and "Y" category research journals listed in HJRS. She is also actively engaged in producing art and has 42 Research in Studio Practice by creating artwork for participation in International and national level group shows or by creating artwork for visual communication campaigns or product design campaigns. She is Curator/Supervisor for 60 Art Displays. She has been actively engaged as a speaker and writer for various topics in the arena of Textiles at many international and national level forums over the past several years. She has more than 30 Research Papers for National and International Conferences and Seminars to her credit. Her topics encompass a desire of building an inclusive community, conservation of indigenous craft, uplift of the destitute and promotion of the ecofriendly practices for a sustainable environment. She is currently focused on the conservation of the withering historic traditional textile techniques of this region. She emphasizes design campaigns with a stronger need of design thinking as a clearer vision of the significance of design process for the reliability and originality of the works produced. She has eagerly contributed in updating textile design curricula as per contemporary requirements and HEC guidelines. She is an active Member of 25 Various Academic Groups and Societies like board of study, board of faculty, external examiner, and member of jury at various universities for the subject of Textile Design. She has Supervised 44 Research of MFA Textile Design Studio Practice and MPHIL and 2 PHD Research Projects. She is playing her role as an academician for bridging industry academia gap.
